GUIDE TO YOUR ADVENTURE

This is how you play the game, and the basic rules.

- * This game is compatible with the Rumble Pak (sold separately).
Playing with the Rumble Pak installed will create appropriate vibrations during the game, resulting in a more realistic gaming experience.
- * This game is an action game in which the player clears a sequence of stages while fighting opponents and collecting "Entry Passes".
- * This game is for a one or two player(s) in simultaneous play.
The player(s) originally start with the "Goemon" or "Ebisumaru" characters, but as the story progresses, "Sasuke" and "Yae" will also join the cast and be available for playing.
- * Each player has different attack methods and special skills.
Change players according to circumstances as the game progresses.
Player change may be executed at "Teahouses" in the town stages.
In the road and castle stages, use the Teahouse Teleporter to warp to the "Teahouse in Another Dimension" and change players.
(See pg. 16 for road and castle stage controls).
(See pg. 17-18 for individual characters' special attacks).
- * "Piggybacks" can be achieved by cooperating with the other player in 2P gaming. (See pg. 19 for Piggybacking.)
- * This game is divided into 5 separate areas, which in turn are comprised of several stages each. All stages within an area are connected via an "Area Map". (See pg. 11 for areas.)
- * Daytime and night exist on some of the stages. Expect many tough-to-beat ghosts to appear during the night.
- * Players survive according to strength. The Strength Gauge goes down after falling prey to opponents' attacks and traps. When the gauge runs out, that player is lost; the game is over once you lose all players.
- * Make entries to the Journal (save) at the town stages' "Inn".
The Strength Gauge can be replenished by staying at the inn or finding recovery items. (See pg.13 for the journal).

- * The Armor Gauge can be replenished using the "Golden Fortune Doll" item. The Strength Gauge meter is evenly spaced, but the Armor Gauge is increased by finding items such as "Raincoat" and "Armor".
- * Defeating an opponent will net you coins and items. Coins are needed to make purchases at stores and to use a subweapon.
Items have a variety of effects, including strength recovery and boosting the number of players remaining. (See pg.26 for items).
- * The town stage has stores and residences, and allows you to shop, recover strength and collect information. To talk to people, approach a person and hit the A or B button. Cancel with the B button.
(See pg. 24 for stores).

- * You will occasionally receive requests from someone in trouble somewhere within the town stage. This request is called a "Mission". Solving this person's problem will net you one "Entry Pass". An "Entry Pass" is necessary in order to pass a Gate Stage. Each Area has a gate that requires a varying number of entry passes. Entry Passes can be obtained by either clearing road stages or accomplishing a "mission" in the town stage.

Bred-in-the-bone Edo kid whose only fault is that he's quick to put his fist where your mouth is. He's heading out on a journey again, this time to recover the machine Wiseman invented from the hands of Bismaru. You're looking at the great and only Goemon, kids!

by the Wiseman, but virtually indistinguishable from Goemon Impact in terms of capabilities. Apparently created to resemble Omitsu, but Omitsu herself seems loath to recognize the fact.

32

IMPACT

In many ways, the "Giant Clockwork Robot" hails from unhappy origins. Doesn't seem quite dependable, but all the same, a reliable and irreplaceable companion to Goemon and the gang. At one point, Impact was a film star hopeful, but a vehicle that he starred in women.

A friend or an enemy?
A mystery girl who brings information to Goemon
and his gang for reasons unknown.
34

BISMARU

Possibly a descendant of Ebisumaru.
A weirdo who came from the future and got stuck in Edo. Apparently believes herself to be a beauty, and always has an eye on a good-looking guy.

CLAY DOLL ARMY

A cavalry of souls embedded in mud dolls, created by Bismaru.
A failed concept by Bismaru.
A failed concept that collapses at the slightest shock.

It was supposed to be dead - but Kabuki returns from the abyss of the Underworld!
Thirsts for revenge against the hated Goemon and pals.
